

Born in 1962 in Albertville, Savoie, André Chpelitch began his trumpet studies in his hometown and pursued them in Chambéry with Michel Ricquier. After winning a First Prize for trumpet, he joined Marcel Lagorce's class at the Conservatoire National Supérieur de Musique et de Danse de Paris (CNSMDP), where he again won a First Prize in 1980. He was principal trumpet of the Orchestre des Concerts Padeloup for one season, before joining the Orchestre de Paris in May 1981, under Daniel Barenboim. He held the position of principal trumpet for his first sixteen years with the Orchestra, then moved to fourth trumpet until 2017. He has appeared as soloist and chamber musician with the Orchestre Padeloup, the Orchestre de Paris, Orchestre de Cannes, and at festivals such as Montpellier Radio France, Châtelet, Empéri, Invalides, Théâtre du Rond Point and Louvre. He also took part in the young soloists' cruise sponsored by Maurice André. He has taught trumpet from an early age, and for six years was the first trumpet teacher of the Orchestre Français des Jeunes (OFJ). He currently teaches at the Conservatoire du Xème arrondissement in Paris.

Alongside the trumpet, he has been composing since the age of ten. He began by diligently copying short passages of music, like calligraphy, which soon encouraged him to try his hand at writing short pieces, which he sight read with his fellow students at the Conservatoire. Over the years, he tested, developed and diversified his style. Like a public writer, he composes for friends, colleagues and institutions who commission him to write pieces for concerts. He is a member of Sacem (Société des auteurs, compositeurs et éditeurs de musique).
